Yesterday's Fire-

The fire of yesterday morning, by which the eigarette-factory of the ALLEN & GINupon the community; though, happily both were fairly well insured.

The eigarette-factory was ablaze when the alarm was turned in; but the fire grace to the American people."

Would have made little further progress. The Fines argues that the p had not the fire-hydrants on the street corners been frozen up. By the time these hydrants could be got in working order, or holes cut in the ice on the canal near by for suction-pipes, the flames had made great headway

It was only by the exercise of much courage and the endurance of great hardships that the firemen were able to confine the fire to the buildings named. Under the circumstances we may well congratulate ourselves that the consequences were no worse. We may also congratulate the community upon the fact that the employees of these two great establishments, which have done so much for Rich mond, will not be long kept in idleness. Both concerns will make early arrangements to give their hands work. Out of these two establishments-especially the eigarette-factory - thousands of people, directly or indirectly, get the money for their daily bread. A stoppage of them, therefore, is a public loss.

As yet we do not know whether the fire had its origin in the boiler-room of the cigarette-factory or was caused by electricwires; but we do know that Richmond can well afford to spend some thousands of dollars to make her fire-hydrants (called 'fire-plugs" here) safe from the effects of freezing weather.

A rigorous winter like this we may not have again for half a century, but for all | England and America. The present task is that we know we may have such another | not half so difficult. eleven or twelve months hence, and therefore, after this costly lesson, we shall not be justified in taking any further risks. Let us adopt the best possible devices against cold weather rendering valueless our supply of water for the fire-engines.

Richmond and Her Water-

The Superintendent of the Water-Works sends us a letter, which we print against the plain-talkers of the press. this morning, returning thanks for himself the Disparce has rendered in warning our people of the danger of a water-famine here. We may add that but for the earnest a mob. and alarming appeals which were made through the columns of this paper the city's condition yesterday morning, with a great fire raging, might have been appalling.

Richmond must give this water question more serious attention. We are trilling with it. At all times we have plenty of water for a city of our size, but we indulge ourselves In a waste that is astonishing.

We may as well thee the question now as later on and realize that unless we economize in the use (or rather, waste) o water we shall have to spend in the near future a great sum in the enlargement of our water-works. This enlargement is really not necessary, nor can we afford to make a large issue of city bonds for any such purpose. The proper thing to do is to compel water-takers to be more economical in the use of water. We must cause householders to have good fixtures put in their houses, and we should offer the greatest possible incentives to those who will consent to use water-meters. We fear that at present the inducement is not sufficient to encourage citizens to give up their old habits of wastefulness and adopt the meter system.

The Danville Register, commenting on a Disparce paragraph about the short supply of water in this city, says that that city would be in the same condition but for water-meters. No doubt of it. Richmond has an abundant supply of water, but we are dealing with a long-established system of water-wasting, and we are confronted with the unpleasant fact that our plumbing is not such as we need for a winter like this. In too many houses, indeed, the closets are of an antiquated pattern and waste twice as much water as they really require, while hundreds of people have no means of emptying their nines to prevent the water from freezing they ask for him. pipes to prevent the water from freezing

The plumbers are not to blame for these ills which we desperately mourn at this time. They have been made the victims of hundreds of foolish jokes unjustly attributing to them all sorts of rapacious but it has never been said of them that they prefer to put in cheap work where people are willing to pay for better.

Richmond will suffer in reputation, and possibly in business, too, if she continues to loll along and waste her water instead of recognizing the fact that her supply is ample, but that it is allowed to waste by means of the old-fashioned fixtures which 17th. are in use in so many houses here and by further reason of the almost criminal care-lessness which has become a habit with so further reason of the almost criminal care-lessness which has become a habit with so many families—families that would be very economical indeed if they had to pay by the hundred gallons for all of the water which they waste. We must adopt the meter-system if we want to save the expense of water-works enlargement. We must have better fixtures put in our houses if we would avoid a repetition of present inconveniences from bursting pipes. We might give our tax-payers pleasanter news ; but it is impossible to give any that is truer.

Mr. Blaine's Disease.

"Mr. BLAINE'S disease remains a mystery to all but the family and the attend. ing physicians," says the telegraph.

Why should it thus remain? Who would or could be injured or mortified by the announcement that his mind was affected. supposing his disease to be a mental affliction? Why should the physician who had prepared an "intelligible report of Mr. BLEINE's condition" have been "peremp-torily requested" to withhold it from publication? Just as soon as dissolution takes place there will be a burial certificate prepared which will disclose the nature of the duease. Why not relieve the public mind by dealing candidly with the friends of the distinguished sufferer? Nay, why should not the general public be informed as to the nature of his disease? The truth will come out in a few days or weeks if the dectors attending him know where of they speak when they write out or hand to the reporters their mysterious outany ground for hope that the invalid will ever again leave his bed. The whole country sympathizes with the suffering states. man and his afflicted family. Let the come out. It will hurt nobody.

"The family and the attending physicians" know what Mr. Blaine's disease is, say the telegrams from Washington. What reason can there be for not telling from both ears. My eyes were very bad, the everybody what is already known to the eyelids so sere it was painful opening or closing them. For nearly a yerr I was deaf. I went to the hospital and had an operation only persons likely to be deeply grieved because of the peculiar character of the disease in question? performed for the removal of a cataract from

The Times's "Delusions." The Times of yesterday, after stating the purport of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the Veazie Bank, adds what here follows

We quote: "The objection now made is this: Congress is given authority to lay and collect taxes to raise revenue; but it is not given authority to lay and collect taxes for any other purpose. The tax on the issues of State banks is not laid to collect the issues of State banks is not laid to collect revenue, but to suppress State-bank notes. Therefore Congress is using a power given it for a distinct purpose to accomplish what Con-gress is forbidden to do. It is not using the power of taxation, but abusing it. It is seeking to do a thing that it is forbidden to do under the false pretence of doing another thing that it is authorized to do. The whole business is nothing but a Yankee trick and a disgrace to the Ameri-

But how is the Supreme Court of the United States to come to a knowledge that the tax on the issues of State banks is not laid to collect revenue, but to suppress State-bank notes"? Would that court take the guesses of counsel for facts proved ? Would that court presume to decide that the Congress of the United States and the President of the United States had made a the cigarette-factory of the ALLEN & GIN-res branch of the American Tobacco Com-have made it for another purpose? The Times argues that the point which it makes in the paragraph quoted above was not presented to the court, and therefore it cannot fairly be claimed that the court has decided the tax not to be unconstitu tional. Our neighbor has a high opinion of that point; but we are content to take the decision as it was made by the Su preme Court.

Curbing the Press.

The French government is stopping ore important work and taking a good deal of trouble to rid itself of objectionable foreign newspaper correspondents.

It would seem to be more to the purpose. to send to prison as soon as possible all the Parisian editors and statesmen who were bought with the money extorted by false representations from the poor people of France, who believed that they were patriotically aiding to build a great canal when they were only aiding in the purchase of rascally public men.

All efforts of the French government to put an embargo upon hostile newspaper criticism will fail. The correspondents who have been declared obnoxious can retire to the frontier and easily keep in communication with Paris.

When the Communists were in possession of Paris and the Germans had their lines around and about it the newspapermen found a way to get their news over to

The government, however, seems not to object to fair reports of trials and legislative proceedings, but it does object to the comments of hostile Italian, German, and other correspondents. The plea is that these men are anti-Republicans. Still, we should rather see all this governmental energy directed towards the punishment of corrupt statesmen and editors than
